SPECIAL EDITION OF THE NEWS.

NOTICE OF THE DEATH OF THE Red White & Blue
With Stars and Bars Attached
Arise and drink your cup of bitterness,
Whose life will soon be ended.

MONDAY MORNING, MAY 22, 1865.

Still Hopeful

Though the chivalry have lost, Charnel's Own Fortune stood by them as well as the star of the Nation; and in the second year of the war, they have shown themselves on every occasion to be the veriest politicians. They possess absolutely none of that personal pluck which characterizes true manhood. Though they make a great and boastful display of valor, and assiduously harangue the world of listeners about their own unimpeachable endurance, it is found when tribulation comes upon them and their situation is rendered hopeless, that instead of demeaning themselves with proper dignity and true fortitude, they exhibit all the pusillanimity, all the low meanness, and all the cowardly and vengeful instincts that belong invariably to people who have been reared under influences that make human feelings weaklings and barbarities a stand of strong, self-reliant and civilized men.

East of the Mississippi, there is not now a single chevaux organized which maintains an organization. The great "Southern Empire" does not now stretch beyond the confines of Texas and western Louisiana; and even this Lilliput has no rival head. The rebel President is a prisoner, the rebel Cabinet is dispersed and each of its members skulking in the swamps to evade capture, with no prospect of ultimate escape; the whole rebel army is lost save only a few skeleton battalions composed of the lowest, the vilest and most despicable of the profligate population of the Southwest yet notwithstanding all this, one of the remaining rebel leaders, forgetful of the fact that the entire Southern association had been made from every stronghold of the South, proclaims the rebels of the valorous Texans never to yield. And with a blustering mendacity that finds no parallel in civilized ages, this Thersites in valor declares that he and the poor wretches that follow him are yet to subdue the United States, and that their military prospects are not dishearteaming, but full of hope.

And who is this gigantic Atlas that proposes now to sustain the weight of the great "Confederacy" on his massive shoulders? It is after all, a person no more mighty than Magruder, once a captain in the old army. He is the same who, when one State after another was withdrawing from the Union, and the Government was apparently a chaos, made a special tender of his services to support the flag, and with assumed constancy and fidelity, protested that he would never desert his country's cause. And yet this faithful servant, the very next day, went over to the enemy, and was rewarded for his defection by the gift of a high command. Thus it may be seen how much importance are his professions of unswerving attachment to anything to which he pretends to be devoted.

It is a very easy thing for Magruder and his coadjutors in the arena of treason to declare that they will never abandon the contest. It is a species of braggadocism that his fellow rebels have been famous for, and by which they have rendered themselves objects of universal derision. And the further they are out of harm's way the louder and more ostentatious do their vauntings become. At the first approach of any considerable force, these rebels will give a new illustration of their wonderful predilection for safety, and retire to a place between which and the enemies they are to conquer, a long distance intervenes, and from which they can issue blatant utterances of undying hate toward those by whom they assert they can never be conquered.

Yet, notwithstanding what Magruder says, we think a disinterested spectator would decide that the military prospects of the "Confederacy" are not very flattering. Magruder comes to this rescue rather too late. Like his compeers in guilt, he will yield inglorioutly at last; yet from present indications, we think he will not do so until he has fully succeeded in making himself an object of as much derision as any of the most contemptible of them have become.

UNOCCUPIED LANDS. It is a prevalent error to suppose that all the eligible farming lands west of the Cascade mountains are held by claimants, and that no opportunities now exist for settlers to procure situations unless they purchase them. It is true that all the choice prairie lands of this valley have long been occupied. Still there are yet many localities where good farms may be made along the foot-hills that flank either side of the great valley. There are very many such places yet remaining to be taken, and in time they must prove valuable. Whenever our population becomes more dense, settlers will be crowded into all these places, and it will be found that none are better for many or all the purposes of husbandry than the very situations that have so far been neglected.

Examinations of the country have developed the fact that there are large bodies of good lands yet untouched, lying in Columbia county, but a few miles from the river, and between Washington county and Astoria. In the localities mentioned, are high table lands, a portion of which is covered with heavy timber. Many other parts are open, or covered with but a slight growth of bushes and trees. The soil, in great part, is of excellent quality. Lands similar to these, when brought under cultivation, are known to yield the richest returns. It may be thought premature, or a matter of speculation to predict the coming settlement of what now seems to be a rough section of country, but we think there can be no hazard in saying that if this valley ever contains a very large population, the places referred to will all be occupied, and lands there deemed of very high value.

BOOTH'S LETTER. The revelations that have been lately made concerning the perpetrators of the most heinous crime modern times has ever witnessed, show that there is only one of feeling in equity to the world by which men could have been schooled to such a height of wickedness as to commit so foul a murder. The assassin, in common with the people of the South, are thousands at the North, could not endure to see slavery assailed, much less to see it turned against the enemies of the Union. Slavery could attack the Union, but it could not be used to defend it. In the letter of Booth which we publish to-day, it will be seen that the assassin puts his hostility to the country on the ground of justice to the South. There is just what every advocate of slavery has always done. With the most overpowering proof that slavery is an institution that makes men heathen, we are still asked, even by North in men, to spare it, for Heaven's sake, for the sake of the South must strike it full if die.

ART AND TACTICS. The Eugene Review says that Dr. Prentice, Williams, King and a host of others "did settle the Democracy four years ago to save the Union." Certain they did, and they acknowledge it; but the Review is an excessively frank contemporary. After this we shall be content to know what course that paper will take to prove that the "Democracy" during this period has been a veritable Union party.

SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN.

DATES TO MAY 16th.

Disturbances at Lynchburg. Things in Virginia.

New York, May 13. The Tribune's special says: "Reports every have gone to Gen. [illegible] of serious disturbances between the blacks and whites. There are [illegible] Lynchburg. The Mayor of the city [illegible] with the utmost difficulty. [illegible] Gen. Ord has issued an order [illegible] to the whites."

New York, May 13. The Herald's correspondent at Richmond says: "The planters are much pleased with the productiveness of agricultural labor. Gen. Wright is issuing passes and [illegible] Richmond. Many negroes are returning to their homes. The [illegible] Danville has been stopped by direction of Gen. Wright. Agricultural operations are being renewed. The farmers, however, are much in need of horses, mules and ample means to provide their work.

Long trains of cars, loaded with valuable property, captured by the National armies in South Carolina, are now daily arriving at City Point, Petersburg, Danville and Burkeville Junction. Among the articles are goods in the original packages in which they ran the blockade of the National fleet on the South coast.

Among the Richmond trophies captured by the advance troops are Russian Bloodhounds which were kept by some of the Libby Prison rulers to hunt down escaped Union prisoners.

A grand review in the vicinity of Washington of the Army of the Potomac, Sherman's army, and such other forces as may be there, is fondly looked forward to by the troops.

The 14th Corps and part of Sherman's army passed through Richmond yesterday en route for Washington.

It is said that Johnny Sherman's sisters and mother are anxious to join the Mexican emigration enterprise.

The rebel Gen. Lee and family are living in Richmond in Government rations which are regularly carried out to them.

The Times special dispatch says: It has been decided to reduce at once the strength of the army to [illegible] men.

No armed Rebels East of the Mississippi River.

New York, May 11. The Herald's correspondent says: The particulars of the surrender of Jeff. Taylor, which took place at Aaron Valley, Va., on the 9th, as made to Gen. Meade. Taylor made efforts to get more favorable terms, but finding he was unbendable, and greatly moved by the tenderness of Lee. Taylor commanded all the troops in Alabama, Mississippi and West Louisiana, and the completes the surrender of the troops east of the Mississippi.

Election Ordered in Virginia.

New York, May 17. The Herald's correspondent says Gov. Pierpont, of Virginia, has issued an address to the voters of the 1st, 2d and 7th Congressional Districts on the subject of election. The 9th Tuesday of the month, day, but as the districts above named are not thoroughly organized no election can be held. By the fiat of Congress the Executive is empowered to call elections to fill vacancies. Gov. Pierpont therefore says that no polls be opened for members of Congress, either in the counties already organized or those organizing, assuring the people that no commissions to county officers in the respective counties shall be issued, but he will order a special election for the above named districts.

Surrender of Jeff. Thompson.

St. Louis, May 15. Official information has been received at headquarters of the surrender of Jeff. Thompson, commanding the district of North Arkansas, to Brig. Gen. Smith's department.

It is now understood that Col. Sprague, of Gen. Pope's staff, is acting Rebel envoy to Shreveport, on the 6th with the view to have a conference with Kirby Smith on the subject of the surrender of the trans Mississippi department.

The commissioners of army officers, appointed by the last Congress to investigate the conduct of the Union officers, and investigate their treatment by the civil and military authorities, will leave Cincinnati on the 1st of next week, and may cross the Rebel lines.

Rebel Gov. Brown Arrested Gen. Forrest Killed.

Louisville, May 16—Maj. Gen. Palmer arrived this evening at Macon. Gen. Wilson arrived at Rebel Gov. Brown at Georgia arrived the morning and the Governor. He was arrested in Macon on the 11th at the executive mansion in Milledgeville.

The Nashville Press learns that Gen. Forrest was killed by Capt. Walker, of the rebel army, in a scrimmage for shooting this son.

Friendly Sympathy for America in Europe.

New York, May 17. The [illegible] arrived this morning from Liverpool on the 6th inst. Reconstruction sympathy with America is [illegible] in almost every [illegible] and [illegible] Among the [illegible] Bright, Cobden, Forster, Gladstone, Milner Gibson, Roebuck, Stansfeld, Thomas Hughes, Wilson Patten, Lord Elcho, Lord Dunkellin, Lord Goderich, Lord Lyveden, Lord Stanley, Lord Wodehouse, Lord Wrottesley, Sir Charles Wood, Sir Hugh Cairns, Sir John Pakington, Sir John Shelley, Sir Stafford Northcote, Sir Thomas Bazley, Sir William Heathcote, Sir William Somerville, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Thomas Baring, Thomas Bruce and Thomas Chambers.

The Liverpool Post says: "Let us hope that the 19th of May will be a day of thanksgiving throughout the land, and that the well known sentiments of Lincoln's inaugural, with regard to the duty of the people to God, will be responded to by a corresponding feeling of humiliation and gratitude."

The Liverpool Mercury says: "Let us hope that the expressions that the Southern people are not with the assassination may be true, and that they will not be tempted to imitate the example of crime. Deeds and not declarations will be required of them. The well known sentiments of Lincoln's inaugural, with regard to the duty of the people to God, will be responded to by a corresponding feeling of humiliation and gratitude. We trust that the Southern people
